

STATEMENT FROM NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL UNIVERSITY

JUNE 29, 2015

North Carolina Central University (NCCU) strives to foster diversity and inclusion within our faculty, staff and student communities. The University has a high expectation of excellence in work performance, accountability and transparency. NCCU maintains nondiscriminatory policies, practices and procedures that ensure the fair, transparent and equitable resolution of employment-related grievances and respects the right of any employee or student to file such claims.

The University will review the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission claim filing in question once it is received to ensure the integrity of that matter is not compromised. All other pending claims have a clearly established legal process and should not be decided in the court of public opinion. We are concerned about the tactics being used by the Noble Law Firm and the public relations agency working on their behalf to litigate these matters in the press.

These actions will not deter NCCU from our mission of providing students with a high quality education in a culturally diverse and enriching environment.
