the Criminal Investigation Division. While serving with the Criminal Investigation Division I investigated and participated in investigations of adults and juveniles, both as suspects and victims of crimes. My assignments and experiences have included the criminal investigation of property crimes, crimes of violence against persons, fraud cases, drug investigations, child abuse cases, and covert and electronic surveillance operations. During the past 17 years as a law enforcement officer, I have received, and continue to receive, specialized training through schools, law enforcement agencies (Federal, state, and local), and seminars. This has included specialized training in criminal investigations, interview and interrogation, statement analysis, search warrants, criminal and psychological profiling, criminal investigative analysis, crime scene analysis, crime scene searches, analytical investigative techniques, conspiracy investigations, and criminal intelligence. The affiant currently holds an Advanced Law Enforcement Certificate awarded by the North Carolina Sheriff's Education and Standards Commission, completed the Criminal Investigation Certificate Program through the North Carolina Justice Academy, and is a current North Carolina State Certified Criminal Justice Instructor.

The applicant swears to the following facts to establish probable cause for the issuance of a property/ records production order:

On November 3rd, 2006, the Wake County Sheriff's Office responded to 5108 Birchleaf Drive, Raleigh, North Carolina in reference to the murder of Michelle Young. Her sister, Meredith Fisher, discovered Mrs. Young's body. Meredith Fisher reported that she had stopped by the Birchleaf Drive location at the request of the decedent's husband, Jason Young. According to Ms. Fisher's statement, Jason Young left a cell phone message for Meredith Fisher on November 3rd, 2006 at 1210 hours (12:10 pm). In the message he asked her to recover E-Bay printouts from his home printer for Coach handbags. The Coach handbag was reportedly being considered as a belated surprise anniversary gift from Mr. Young to Mrs. Young. Their wedding anniversary was on October 10th, 2006, however, they were actually married at the Magistrate's Office on August 12th 2003.

The original E-Bay printouts were recovered from the scene as well as from a subsequent search of the Young's computer. It has been determined that the auction items from the printouts and the computer data search were for auctions that would have ended prior to Mr. Young arriving at the Hampton Inn in Hillsville, Va. Therefore, the searched handbags from the printouts would have no longer been available for purchase or bidding.

Meredith Fisher has stated that she responded to her sister's home, passed through the unsecured garage, and entered the residence through the garage / kitchen door. Once inside she walked through the residence and ultimately discovered the decedent lying on the floor of her bedroom. In addition to discovering the decedent, the decedent's child was reportedly discovered by Meredith Fisher as well. The child was found on, what appeared to be, Jason Young's side of the bed in the master bedroom.

After locating the decedent, Ms. Fisher called 911. Once responding deputies arrived at 5108 Birchleaf Drive they secured the scenc and the City – County Bureau of Identification, processed it. As a part of the crime scene processing, items that may be of an evidentiary value are seized. Some of the items seized from a crime scene may need additional analysis or processing in order to determine the extent of their evidentiary value. This was the case with several items taken from 5108 Birchleaf Drive.

According to the Young family, the victim’s husband, Jason Young was informed of his wife’s death on the evening of November 3rd, 2006. This supposedly occurred upon his arrival at his mother’s home in Brevard, NC. Upon learning of the death, Jason Young and his family made their way to Raleigh. While in route, he was contacted by Detectives from the Criminal Investigation Division of the Wake County Sheriff’s Office. During their brief conversation, Jason Young stated that he would not be willing to speak with the investigators until he had secured legal counsel. The investigator was attempting to enlist Jason Young’s assistance in the early stages of the investigation so that he could do a walk through of the residence to look for items that were missing or out of place. In addition, Mr. Young may have been able to provide names of person that may have had a conflict with his family or information on recent visitors or workers that may have been in the residence. However, he refused to come to the scene or to continue speaking with investigators. In addition to refusing to cooperate with the investigation, Mr. Young did not inquire as to his daughter’s wellbeing or the nature and / or cause of his wife’s death. The conversation concludes with Jason Young hanging up on the investigator who is speaking with him.

As of this date, Jason Young has not voluntarily assisted in any aspect of the investigation into his wife’s death, he has not made an inquiring into the progress of the case, and he has not been interviewed by investigators despite requests in person and through his attorney. In addition, Mr. Young has never provided investigators with an alibi nor has he accounted for his whereabouts and activities at the time of his wife’s murder. Any information concerning Mr. Young’s possible whereabouts have come from third parties and / or financial records, phone records, eyewitnesses, or other investigative sources.

In an attempt to learn as much as possible about the Young’s habits, patterns, and lifestyle, several investigative techniques were employed. Interviews were conducted with the Young’s friends, family, and co-workers and, pursuant to search warrants and court orders; various forms of electronic communications were examined as well. These tools and techniques were also utilized to try and account for Jason Young’s whereabouts on November 2nd, 2006 thru November 3rd, 2006.

As a result of the investigation it was learned that Jason Young left Raleigh on the evening on November 2nd, 2006 and headed to Virginia in order to attend a meeting at the Dickenson Community Hospital in Clintwood, Virginia on November 3rd, 2006 at 10:00 am. It was also learned that Mr. Young was 35 minutes late for the meeting according to a representative of Norton Community Hospital. (Dickenson Community Hospital is a critical access hospital owned by Norton Community Hospital) The hospital representative who met with Mr. Young said that he excused his late arrival to the meeting as a result of getting lost. The hospital representative continued by describing Mr. Young as being "hyper" and "this looked like it was nervousness".

As mentioned, investigators have analyzed several forms of electronic media and communications during the course of this investigation. During the analysis, Mr. Young was discovered on a security video at the Hampton Inn in Hillsville, VA. The video was recorded at approximately 2358 hours (11:58 pm) on November 2nd, 2006 on and, in part, shows Mr. Young as he headed towards a side exit door. This action closely followed a phone call at 2342 hours (11:42 pm) to Michelle Money. This phone call was not only the last transmission from Mr. Young's cell phone on November 2nd, 2006, but it also signified an end to this cell phone recording a cell tower "ping" on the local cell phone tower. The next cell tower "ping" recorded by Mr. Young's phone was on November 3rd, 2006 at approximately 0740 hours (7:40 am). From an analysis of the cell phone and cell tower records, it has been determined that this call came from a point southwest of Wytheville, Virginia. Jason Young has provided no information as to his whereabouts between the hours of 0001 hours (12:01 am) and 0740 hours (7:40 am) on November 3rd, 2006.

While conducting the investigation into Jason Young's whereabouts on November 2nd, 2006 thru November 3rd, 2006, investigators became aware of a possible relationship between Mr. Young and a woman by the name of Michelle Money. As already stated, various electronic communication records and devises were analyzed. This analysis quickly revealed that Mr. Young was in engaged in an extramarital affair with Mrs. Money. Mrs. Money was interviewed about the relationship and admitted that she was in frequent communication with Mr. Young and that their relationship included a physical element as well.

On November 16th, 2006 Mrs. Money was interviewed about her relationship with Jason Young. She provided investigators with a detailed account of a visit she received from Mr. Young during the weekend of October 7th, 2006. During the visit Mrs. Money stated that she and Mr. Young had sexual intercourse on two occasions.

A male friend of Jason Young's was interviewed during the course of this investigation and he corroborated Mrs. Money's statements. The friend stated that Jason Young's told him that he loved Michelle Money and believed that she loved him as well. In addition the friend says Jason Young stated, "Mrs. Money and her husband were trying to have a child, but Mrs. Money stated she hoped it would be his."

A search warrant for the Young's E-mails and computers lead investigators to find the following E-mail exchange from October 28th, 2006.

Michelle Money - "I hope your doing okay! IMY and I am sorry that you are having a bad day."

"I am glad Meredith was there to support you and I am sad for you and Michelle that it is not a good mix. I wish things were different for all of us."

"Miss you tons!"

The last recorded phone call made by Jason Young on his cell phone on November 2nd, 2006 was to Mrs. Money. It was one of approximately fifty phone calls and text messages calls between the two parties on this date. (There were approximately 980 phone calls and text messages between Jason Young and Michelle Money between the date s of October 4th, 2006 and November 3rd, 2006) On the morning of November 3rd, 2006 records show that Jason Young made his first phone call to Mrs. Money at 7:49 am.

The following e-mail exchange is between Jason Young and his father-in-law after the affair with Michelle money became public.

thanks for sharing. i must be honest with you and tell you that i felt very put off by your response to me last week when i tried to discuss the "michelle money relationship". your response to me sounded similar to a prewritten statement to the press. in addition, our telephone call was conveniently cut short because of bad cell phone reception. you have never returned that call. jason, to this point june and i have stood by you with tremendous support and want very much to continue to offer this to you as we have constantly asked both you and your family if there is anything we can do. you do know that our words are certainly not just for effect but meant with heartfelt feelings. jason, i feel very put off and i am not happy. we will not under any circumstances turn our backs on you but i need to know that you are being fothright with me. i do not condone a "relationship" with anyone other than your wife "

" i do want to continue speaking with cassidy and very much want to see her sooner than later. i miss her dearly, as i do michelle.
please think about what i have said,

"Mr. Fisher,

I am sorry you felt put off by my response about the "Michelle Money relationship". I can assure you that my addressing the subject with you was not "prewritten" or thought about beforehand and in fact it caught me off guard when you asked about it.

In our conversation, you started off by saying you understood I could not talk about anything regarding the case and investigation. The next question out of your mouth was about the "Michelle Money" part of the investigation....

I have been advised to not discuss ANYTHING with ANYONE about the case. Believe me, my own mom was "put off" by me when all of this surprised her and came out. She had the same questions and all I could tell her was I couldn't talk about it.

With you, I felt like I owed you more than that, so I simply said I was glad she was fully cooperating with authorities and that the information was two weeks old. My mom apparently felt a little better about things after having a conversation (which I don't know the details of) with Lisa. I would recommend calling my mom and Lisa if you feel the need to discuss more about everything, but realize, I cannot.

I hope we haven't come to inferring things like "conveniently cut off". I have a "temporary" phone that I purchase the minutes as I go. It is through "Virgin" and the reception here is terrible. I was getting close to my mom's house when the phone cut out and I get zero coverage at her house. I didn't return the call from her house b/c my mom's house still doesn't have long distance after she switched her phone number (they told her it would be 7 to 10 days) so long distance calls CAN'T be made from her house phone. When I'm at her house, I do not have internet access and my phone doesn't work. I have been at her house trying to keep Cassidy away from the media for the past 5 or 6 days.

You are correct in that I wasn't looking forward to having to tell you that I couldn't discuss anything further, but I certainly didn't hang up the phone on you or "conveniently" plan for us to get cut off. I also assumed if you wanted to discuss more on that matter, you would have called me back.

I know I certainly have appreciated the support from you and June and I know my family has too. I don't know what anyone can do to help but send their thoughts and prayers and I know you always do. I hope you don't feel like just b/c I haven't asked you for anything that I don't thing your offer to help in any way is not "heartfelt".

I absolutely want you to see Cassidy sooner than later and I feel like I've made that very clear for WEEKS. You have a standing offer to come to my Mom's (and have for a long time) to visit and I have asked about taking her up there to visit (and you said it would be better after the holidays).

I always want you and Cassidy to have a great relationship and I think the more you talk the better. I have always encouraged a positive relationship with you and her. I am not sure why you are requesting to "continue" talking to her...I have never nor would I ever prevent you from having a great relationship with your granddaughter.

I have read your email very closely and have thought about what you wrote. I too miss Michelle very much and still don't feel I've had time to grieve with all that has been going on. I've never been so filled with emotions in

Mr. Alan Fisher, Michelle Young's father, was interviewed by investigators with the Wake County Sheriff's Office and expressed some of the same concerns from his e-mail. The following transcription is from that interview:

"Alan Fisher: He called me from a cell phone and we had conversation, and in the conversation I -- and I cleared this with the D.A.'s Office - that it was okay for him to know that I met with the D.A.'s at my house. Because it was important to keep my credibility with him; that he heard that from me and not secondhand from someone else. And the D.A. said as long as you don't discuss anything that we discuss, and I said absolutely not, that won't happen. So at the end of the conversation I told Jason that there's something that I needed to tell him, that he's - you know, I can't discuss anything about it and I can't accept any questions, but it was important for me that he hear it from me, and that was that the D.A. came up from Raleigh and met me at my home and we spent part of the day speaking. That they had contacted me recently before that and they wanted to get it done sooner than later and they came up to New Jersey, and that was the only conversation that I spoke to him about that. He thanked me for telling him and I sensed that his mood changed a little bit.

Det. Spivey: How so? How did his mood change?

Alan Fisher: He, he just seemed to get a little bit more reserved when I told him that, like almost - I'm not going to say bad but maybe a little distant when I told him. You know he said he (inaudible) for telling him. And I told him that that like him, you've been advised by your attorneys not to discuss anything about the case. Well, I've been told that I can, it's permissible for me to tell you (inaudible) with them, but I'm not permitted to discuss anything about it or answer any questions, and he said I can understand that, and he got very - he got distance and he was very slow in his word, in his choice of words, like - I think it caught him off guard.

Det. Spivey: Okay.

Alan Fisher: And I haven't spoke to him since then.

Det. Spivey: Okay. Had you been kind of speaking to him on a routine basis for the past few months or -

Alan Fisher: Normally on a Sunday evening he will call my house and I'll talk to him for a few minutes, or he may talk to my wife for a few minutes, and then he'll put Cassidy on the phone and I'll talk to her. Usually her (inaudible) staying on the phone is not that long.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: And then he and I'll just chit-chat for a few minutes and that's it. And that's about the only time I'll speak to him in a whole week, is a Sunday, with the preference really of me talking to my granddaughter.

Det. Spivey: Right. Right.

Alan Fisher: And you should be aware that he made a trip up to my home with Cassidy and his mother from March 21st to March 25th. I don't know if you and David are aware of that. Winstead is and the D.A. is.

Det. Spivey: Okay. I think actually, I think I have heard that he had, that he had visited up there with you.

Alan Fisher: Yes. I helped put that together. He knew, you know, he knew that I wanted to see my granddaughter. I hadn't seen her since November. My health is not for the best and it wasn't advisable for me at the time, it wasn't advisable for me at the time to be traveling, certainly down to North Carolina.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: And my birthday was the 26th. Cassidy is the 29th. It was kind of like put together for my birthday, and my wife was very instrumental in putting that together, and it was also an opportunity, of the record, it was an opportunity for us to observe him.

Det. Spivey: Okay. How did he seem during that visit?

Alan Fisher: How did he seem during the visit?

Det. Spivey: Yes, sir.

Alan Fisher: Top of the world. It was like Michelle was a thing of the past. Not that he said that but, you know, he seemed to be moving on with his life, and obviously wouldn't get any, in any conversation or answer any questions about anything. I mean he said that expression a while ago with me, and he was fine. I didn't see, I didn't see or we didn't see much emotion. He was a little broad faced a couple of times. That was about the extent of his emotions as far as when it came to Michelle.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: You know, but you know something, Detective, it's almost like - it's, it's what he didn't do that concerned us.

Det. Spivey: And how -

Alan Fisher: How so? Just a real - I mean I was very emotional a number of times. My wife was emotional and this - and my wife is not a biological mother.

Det. Spivey: Right. Yes, sir.

Alan Fisher: I have my dining room, I have half the dining room table turned into a shrine with pictures, an album, news clippings, emails, cards. You name it, it's on that table, and anyone that comes to visit my home I at some point, I walk them in there and they spend time at that table. Well, because Cassidy's birthday was the 29th and they were leaving on the 25th, we bought her a number of gifts for them, for them to take back to North Carolina, and we - my wife intentionally set them up in the corner of the dining room so that Jason would have to be near that table, and we were going to open all the gifts in the dining room. Well, similar to the gifts, Jason's mother, who I have to tell you we both have a lot of respect for and the two of us feel she's really in the dark on a lot of things. I mean I really feel for this lady because I think she's been told, I think she's been sold a bill of goods if he's involved. I don't think she personally, and my wife will say the same, I don't think she has a clue that he's involved or could be involved in this. But, any rate, she walked over to the table and I happen to walk in and she was very emotional. She put her arm around me and hug me and she stood there for a good 45 minutes or longer, reading things in detail. I mean very emotional and very caring and it wasn't fake. It was very real. When I - when we went back into the kitchen I told Jason what was on the dining room table and I said, look, you're welcome to go in there and look at whatever you want and see whatever you want, if you want to talk about anything. He made it a point not to go near that table. When we were in there opening the gifts he stayed far away from that end of the table. It's like he couldn't face it. Now why would someone that had nothing to do with this avoid that? If that were my wife and I had nothing to do with it I would be over there looking at everything.

Det. Spivey: That's - again those are questions that I would love to be able to ask him, do you know that?

Alan Fisher: Of course.

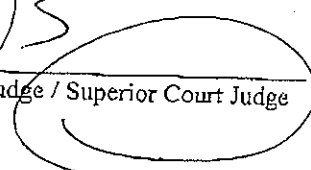

Det. Spivey: Yeah.

Alan Fisher: Of course.

Det. Spivey: You know -

Alan Fisher: And the other thing, and the other thing, Detective, I have to tell you and maybe my expectations were too high, but he and I intentionally on my wife's and my part, we - I was alone with him and Cassidy on a number of occasions. My wife and Jason's mom went along in the car once or twice. Jason and I spent some time one-on-one with just Cassidy. Certainly in my house he had ever opportunity to say to me something to the effect, Mr. Fisher, could we take a walk and then - just he and I. And I know I would have done this if I wasn't involved. I would have said, look, off the record I just need you to know, I shouldn't be talking about it, but you need to know that I had nothing to do with this and I could never do this and I feel horrible and you know I have advice from my attorneys and I can't talk. You need to know that I wasn't involved. He had four days to make a statement similar to that, to me, no one else.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: He never did. And so again, it's the things he didn't do that really, really made my wife and I feel even that much more suspicious of him.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: Now he told us like his life is going on.

Det. Spivey: Right. I mean that is strange. I mean because that's, that's the common denominator between you, him and Cassidy, is your daughter.

Alan Fisher: And it's important, and David knows how I feel and I've told this to Winstead and the D.A., you need to know this. It's important for me for him to feel that my wife and I are on his side and we believe in him, for two purposes. A, so that I have access to my granddaughter and, B, because he is more likely to show something to me or to my wife, who is really a non-participant in this, than he would to anyone else. He, he talks a little freer to my wife because there's no, no real blood relation there.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: And my wife and Michelle had a very, very bad relationship. There was a lot of bad blood on their part. I feel for both of them.

Det. Spivey: Right.

Alan Fisher: Because they could not have relationships. So he's, he's more incline to talk a little freer and obviously that's what I want to happen. But I can never let him think unless this goes to trial that anything other than is going on. And my greatest fear is that if it goes to trial and he's acquitted or found innocent, I'll never see my granddaughter again."

"Alan Fisher: And he would do that because he knows - he can be very smart boy and he can really be - there's a side of him that, some sides of him that I found after the murder that I never knew existed. I mean David told me a long time ago he's not the person you think he is. Then - David, Detective David, if you're listening, you're a hundred percent, hundred fifty percent right.

Det. David: Well, I need to say that to be right. I just wanted you to understand that there's other sides of the people.

Alan Fisher: He, he has the personality that -- we're convinced he's a chameleon. He is what you want him to be and he's got multiple personalities and he leads you to believe that that's the person he is. The minute he's out of your presence he's a chameleon to someone else.

Det. David: Right.

Alan Fisher: That's his personality. I used to think when you and I first spoke, Detective David, I always felt that Michelle was the anal one, you know, the one with the lists, the one that was responsible. On the other hand, I always expected Jason would shoot from the hip, very, like absentminded, very carefree, very - like not the most intelligent person. I have to tell you this guy is methodical. This guy is highly intelligent. He would remember verbatim word-for-word that you say.

Dct. David: Right.

Alan Fisher: When you said it.

Det. David: Right.

Alan Fisher: And far from, far from being shoot from the hip. That's not his personality.

Det. David: Right.

Alan Fisher: That's what he wanted you to believe. And I've heard some comments that people think he's not smart enough to get away with this. You know, can I tell you something?

Alan Fisher: He's very smart to get away with this on what he's, what, what he thinks he's done to this point.

Det. David: Well, I -

Alan Fisher: (Inaudible) in my heart. But he is very capable of doing this and thinking that he can get away with it."

"Alan Fisher: I know that Jason has made living very difficult for Meredith and my ex-wife to spend any unsupervised time with Cassidy. I don't know if you're aware of that, and they seem to be very short visits, two-hour visits and supervised, and they don't let them alone with her out of some fear that they have.

Det. David: Right.

Alan Fisher: We, we were not treated the same way. We had the luxury of spending one-on-one time with Cassidy, and my wife - we would go - my wife, Cassidy and myself took a nap together in our bed and Jason and his mom went upstairs and they took naps, and were alone with her."

In e-mails that were retrieved during the investigations, Jason Young was found to have denied or hidden his marital status. In an e-mail from May 18th, 2006, Mr. Young has initiated contact with a female who had attended Camp Illahee in Brevard, North Carolina. Mr. Young had been an instructor at the camp in his late teens. In the e-mail he is discussing a mutual friend.

The May 18th, 2006 e-mail was not the only e-mail discovered by investigators. In an e-mail exchange between Jason Young and his sister, Kim Young, he expresses some of his thoughts on the investigation that he has not cooperated with. The following are excerpts are from this E-mail.

Jason Young - "Recall what we were discussing, it was YOUR statement that Roger was somehow benefiting financially by this being drawn out. That is simply WRONG and is an assumption on your part that is based on nothing. The FACT is, there is a set amount for this investigative process. PERIOD. If this investigation lasts 3 months or 2 years, he doesn't "benefit" from the longevity. His ONLY concern is for me and that hopefully there will NEVER be an arrest."

Jason Young - "The only thing that matters is the investigation itself and you can see that it has led to nothing."

Jason Young - "I hired a good attorney (which I didn't even know at the time, they were just recommended) and I haven't been arrested even though it's been obvious that the focus has been on me. I am going to continue to follow what they say."

The following quotes are from the same E-mail exchange between Jason Young and Kim Young. In this part of the exchange, Kim Young has written a long statement. Jason Young has entered his rebuttals into a copy of her original statement.

Kim Young - "If you think public opinion doesn't matter, then you are living in a very naïve isolated world. You are very insulated in Brevard and have no clue out of that protected little world about what is and isn't being said, including by your own close friends, some of whom who do have doubts about you this has gone on for so long with so many things being said by the media and police that neither you nor Roger ever address. As time goes on that only progresses."

Jason Young - "There are glory "lawyers" out there that will do anything and everything to get in the news. Thank God, I do not have one. Thank God, I live in my "insulated" world, but I don't CARE anymore about what is being said about me. It is very clear to me from the start that there will be a PUBLIC trial and what REALLY happens. A public trial does nothing, zero, zilch. If it filters out "true" friends then great. I can't imagine you being privy to conversations with my "close friends", but maybe you've changed and hangout in Raleigh with them on a regular basis...???"

Kim Young - "What happens when her little friends aren't allowed to come play with her or spend the night because rumor is her daddy killed her mommy?"

Jason Young - "I don't think that would ever happen, I think you are being extremely dramatic and very unrealistic. Your whole world is based on the people you know and who know about this situation. You spend your days on the internet going into chatrooms where you're not going to find anything good written about the situation, but in time, things will die down. Most people out there don't know one thing about any of this. You are right, I am here in Brevard, but in little old Brevard there was a big article written about this and you know how a small town talks. Still though, the majority of folks have no idea and that amount will continue to decrease with time. Think for a moment, how many crimes and murders do you recall? What details do you know about that situation? Did you even hear about the murder in Durham about a year ago under similar before you started your internet chat room time? I doubt it...I bet you can't even name the husband who moved out West to be with family after the murder. Was he a suspect? Is he still? I don't know but I do know that I wouldn't recognize his name or his face if he or his kid walked up to me tomorrow."

Kim Young - "Have you thought about the day when she asks you why you were having a relationship with someone else? How is that going to make her feel?"

Jason Young - "Yes I have, and it is not going to be an easy time for me, but it will have to happen. I don't know how it's going to make her "feel".

Kim Young - "When you called me when Michelle was pregnant and said you were getting married, I asked you if you were ready for that responsibility or if you would resent it? You said you were ready."

Jason Young - "ok, and your point is????"

Kim Young - "Your actions here affect everything about the rest of Cassie's life and you need to think about that"

During the crime scene search of the residence conducted by the City-County Bureau of Identification, a pillow was located in the victim's bedroom. This pillow contained two footwear impressions in what appeared to be blood.

During subsequent analysis by the City-County Bureau of Identification, one footwear impression was identified as a "Franklin" brand athletic type shoe through a footwear database. The number 10 could be seen in the impression. The other footwear impression could not be identified.

The unidentified footwear impression was submitted to the NC State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) Laboratory. Agent Karen Murray of the Latent Evidence section of the SBI Laboratory continued searching footwear databases in an attempt to identify the shoe. On December 11, 2007, Agent Murray emailed a photograph of the unidentified footwear impression to Michael Smith of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in Quantico, Virginia. Smith conducted a search through the FBI Footwear database in an attempt to identify the brand of the unidentified footwear impression. The unidentified footwear impression could not be identified.

Smith advised Agent Murray he would continue to search the database on a regular basis due to the database being continuously updated.

On January 25, 2008, Smith telephoned Agent Murray and advised that he found a shoe that corresponds with the unidentified footwear impression located in the bedroom of Michelle and Jason Young. Smith concluded the footwear impression was made by a "Hushpuppies" brand shoe. Smith's co-worker, Eric Gilkerson, reviewed the comparison and agreed with Smith's conclusion. Agent Murray also reviewed Smith's comparison and agreed with his conclusion.

Smith contacted Tom Riha of "Hushpuppies" brand shoes located in Rockford, Michigan. Smith requested information pertaining to what models of "Hushpuppies" brand shoes had the same outsole design as the sample in the FBI database that was compared to the footwear impression left in the crime scene. Agent Murray also spoke with Riha directly about this matter. Riha informed Agent Murray that two separate models of "Hushpuppies" had this same outsole design. He stated "Hushpuppies" models "Bellville" and "Sealy" contained this specific outsole. Both models had been discontinued. Riha told Agent Murray there could possibly be another model that contained this same outsole design but he needed to continue searching his records. Since the shoes were discontinued, stores no longer carried the shoes to be sold but that some Internet shoe sites could possibly have a pair.

On December 6th, 2006 an inquiry was made to DSW Shoe Warehouse due to attempting to locate shoe purchases made by Jason and Michelle Young. A DSW shoe warehouse card was located as part of the crime scene search of the Young's residence. DSW provided a printout pursuant to a Court Order showing purchases made by Jason and Michelle Young.

DSW records reflect that on July 4, 2005, Jason Young purchased four pairs of shoes from DSW Shoe Warehouse in Cary, NC. The four pairs of shoes were described as: 1) Reebok white/red Net Hex men's basketball athletic leather, size n/a; 2) Candies C-Delfin wood low heel buckle with bow slide, junior leather sandal, size 7; 3) Hush Puppies Orbital plain toe slip on men's casual leather shoe, size 12; and 4) Adidas white/navy Fortitude men's leather athletic jogger.

An inquiry was made to "Hushpuppies" to determine if the Hushpuppies "Orbital" shoe had the same outsole design as the "Bellville" and "Sealy" models. Tom Riha researched the shoe and telephoned Agent Murray to advise her that the "Orbital" model did have the same outsole design as the "Bellville" and the "Sealy", therefore, it had the same outsole as the footwear impression in blood located inside the crime scene. This shoe had also been discontinued.

Riha told Agent Murray that he could inquire with the Hushpuppies manufacturer in China to determine if he could have a pair of "Orbital" shoes made in size 12 which was the size that DSW records reflect Jason Young purchased from DSW.

Riha sent copies of DSW purchase orders and shipping records of shoes purchased from Hushpuppies.

On November 7th, 2006 Jason Young was served with a Non-Testimonial Identification Order compelling him to appear and allow for the collection of certain standards. The standards included fingerprints, hair samples, and blood. The order also allowed for the collection of photographic evidence. As a part of this procedure photographs were taken of Mr. Young's bare feet. In the photographs blister like irritations can be seen on the sides of his feet. The most prominent areas seem to be along the sides at and near the little toe and the area above and behind the big toe.

On August 5th, 2008 a board certified podiatrist, viewed the photographs of Jason Young's feet from the Non-Testimonial Identification Order. He stated that the blister like irritations were consistent with someone who may have been wearing shoes that were too small for their feet.

In reviewing the Birchleaf crime scene, bottles of Tylenol Extra Strength adult cold medicine and Pancof-PD were found in Cassidy's room. Both medications were located on the shelves / hutch area in her room. The other medications on this shelving unit appear to be Eckerd's brand children's vitamins, children's Gummy Vites vitamins, a bottle of Hot Steam Liquid, and two additional bottles whose labels cannot be read. One of the bottles appears to contain a white cream-like substance.

Generic Name: chlorpheniramine, dihydrocodeine, and phenylephrine

Chlorpheniramine is an antihistamine. It blocks the effects of the naturally occurring chemical histamine in the body and reduces congestion

Dihydrocodeine is a narcotic. It is a pain reliever and a cough suppressant.

Phenylephrine is a decongestant. It works by constricting (shrinking) blood vessels (veins and arteries) in the body. Constriction of blood vessels in the sinuses and nose decreases congestion.

Use caution when driving, operating machinery, or performing other hazardous activities. Chlorpheniramine, dihydrocodeine, and phenylephrine may cause dizziness or drowsiness.

Chlorpheniramine, dihydrocodeine, and phenylephrine may increase the effects of other drugs that cause drowsiness, including antidepressants, alcohol, antihistamines, sedatives (used to treat insomnia), pain relievers, anxiety medicines, seizure medicines, and muscle relaxants.

Dihydrocodeine is habit forming. It is possible become physically and/or psychologically dependent on the medication.

The following information on Pancof-PD is from everydayhealth.com:

Pancof PD Liquid should be used with extreme caution in children; safety and effectiveness in children have not been confirmed.

A review of Jason Young's wage history file shows that Pan American Laboratories employed him in March of 2004, April of 2004, and January of 2005. When an Internet search done for Pan American Laboratories it shows that the company has changed it's name to PamLab LLC.

Jason Young's connection to PamLab / Pan American Laboratories is being noted because they manufacture Pancof PD.

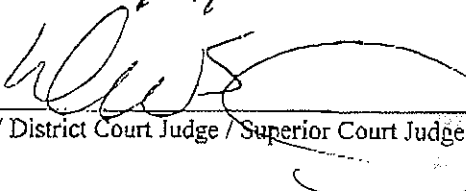

On May 29th, 2008 a court order for Cassidy Young's medical records was obtained. The reason for obtaining the records was to determine if Pancof PD had ever been prescribed for Cassidy Young. As stated Pancof PD is a medication that was located on a shelf in Cassidy Young's room on November 3rd, 2006. It and a bottle of Adult Extra Strength Tylenol were the only non-children's medications seen on the shelves. Pancof PD is noteworthy because of it's possible sleep inducing side effects. A Pancof PD dropper was also discovered on the shelves and was seized for additional testing.

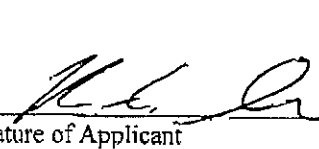

Prior to the court order for the medical records, a search warrant had been issued for the DNA of Cassidy Young. The search warrant was obtained on July 25, 2007 and served on July 26, 2007. Jason Young's mother, Pat Young was with Cassidy Young when the warrants was served and when an inner cheek swabbing was obtained. Mrs. Pat Young was given a copy of the search warrant.

On February 14, 2008 I along with other investigators returned to Brevard, NC in order to serve additional search warrants in connection with this investigation. During this time the situation with the adult cold medicines being in Cassidy Young's room was brought up with Pat Young. She stated that her son, Jason Young had said that he gave Cassidy Young the adult cold medicines. However, according to Mrs. Young, he claimed to have diluted them with water first.

A Pancof PD dropper that was seized from Cassidy Young's room at the Birchleaf scene was analyzed and compared to known DNA samples. The SBI Laboratory Report states the following: "The partial DNA sample obtained from the dropper MATCHED the DNA profile obtained from Cassidy Young and DID NOT MATCH the DNA profiles of Michelle Young..."

A reviewed of the copies of Cassidy Young's medical records reveled no mention, prescription, or reference to Pancof PD. However, there were references, suggestions, and prescription notes concerning children's medications, ibuprofen, Tylenol, and rash creams.

The records also acted as conformation that Jason Young worked for Pan American Laboratories. On an insurance form dated April 2nd, 2004, it lists Jason Young as Cassidy Young's father and gives his employer as being Pan American Laboratories. The form appears to have been signed by Michelle Young.

As previously stated, Jason Young was formerly a sales representative for Pan American Laboratories. Pan American Laboratories is now doing business as PamLab. PamLab was contacted on 07/14/08 and the Wake County Sheriff's Office investigators requested information on Mr. Young's employment history. Investigators specifically requested to know about which medications Jason Young had received training and which medications he had been given samples.

The following reply was received from PamLab on 07/21/08:

"Our Compliance Department was waiting for my return in order to send information to you. There may have been a communication error on my part and I apologize for the delay.

Jason Young was a pharmaceutical sales representative for Pan American Laboratories from 3/18/2002 - 1/24/2005 when he resigned for another job. During the course of his employment he would have been thoroughly trained in product knowledge for all products he sampled.

Attached is a report showing products sampled by Jason Young during the period 1/1/2004 through 12/31/2005.

Please let me know if you require any additional information.
